

To make exceptions to "No Call Lists" is, I believe, overstepping your bounds. You are not in the business of overriding state government laws or initiatives. What would make you think that it is OK with anyone to allow people to be bothered at home by telemarketers. If that is the way they choose to make a living then let them follow local laws. There are several examples of other business' that must follow local laws in addition to those of the federal government. It is not the place of Federal Government to ensure the rights of business over that of individual citizens. How dare you!!!!
